THE AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATIONMISSISSIPPI'S FIFTEEN LARGEST CITIES.

According to preliminary census figures already made public, Mississippi has fifteen cities of more than 5,000 population. Meridian is the largest, with a population of 23,436, and Tupelo barely goes over the mark with a population of 5,055. Laurel shows the largest percentage of growth, with the exception of Pascagoula, while Vicksburg is the only city to show a loss, having declined 13 per cent within the ten-year period.

The figures and the standing of the cities are as follows:

1. Meridian.....	23,436
2. Jackson.....	22,679
3. Vicksburg.....	17,931
4. Hattiesburg.....	13,037
5. Laurel.....	12,608
6. Natchez.....	11,560
7. Greenville.....	10,982
8. Biloxi.....	10,552
9. Columbus.....	8,522
10. Clarksdale.....	8,157
11. Gulfport.....	7,793
12. Greenwood.....	7,775
13. McComb.....	6,082
14. Pascagoula.....	5,055
15. Tupelo.....	5,055

We are giving Hattiesburg fourth place as a neighborly courtesy, but it is our candid opinion that Laurel is the larger of the two cities. The population of Hattiesburg has not as yet been announced, but we have it on pretty good authority that the census will exceed that of Laurel by only a few hundred. It will be remembered that the enumeration in Hattiesburg was held up several weeks in an effort to secure 15,000 names and thus save the city charter (Hattiesburg is operating under the code provision for cities of more than 15,000), but the number actually fell far short of that mark. The enumeration of at least two of the wards of Laurel was poorly done, hundreds of citizens having been overlooked entirely, and there is little doubt in the minds of our people that this city now has more than 15,000 population.

But a gain of 54 per cent, in ten years is a population showing of which Laurel has a right to be proud, and the Daily Leader confidently believes that this rate will be maintained for many years to come.—Laurel Leader.
